

MILK TO BE SOLD AT WINTER RATE

Customary Decrease of 1 Cent on May 1 Fails to Materialize This Year.

Thousands of milk consumers in Washington who have been led, from an experience of twenty-five years, to expect a decrease of 1 cent a quart in the price of milk beginning May 1, are doomed to disappointment when they receive their bills for the current month.

Practically all the large dealers in Washington will sell milk at the winter price, 9 cents a quart, throughout the summer.

Heretofore the lower price, put into effect May 1, has continued until October 1. The prospects are for the winter price to remain in effect without a break until that time, prominent dealers say.

The causes they give are, in many cases, a continuance of the same whole-sale price by the farmer, and even when this is not done the increased expense of dairy operation, it is claimed, makes necessary the increase.

Dealers point to the fact that they have been advised of an increase in the price of a gross on milk bottles, that the drivers and other employees are getting from 15 to 20 per cent wages, and that the price of stationery, of coal and wood, and of other materials have advanced.

The farmers, too, are affected by the higher cost of living. They must pay more for equipment of all sorts, and for labor. In many cases they have either made no decrease at all, or only a partial one, to the retailers, it is said.

House to Observe Cannon's Birthday

Testimonial Arranged to Form Speaker for Saturday Morning.

Leaders of the House, irrespective of party affiliations, have arranged an unusual testimonial to former Speaker Joseph G. Cannon for next Saturday morning at 11 o'clock.

"Uncle Joe" will be eighty years old on Sunday, and the House leaders have arranged a demonstration in his honor on Saturday, when eulogistic speeches will be made by Speaker Clark, Majority Leader Kitchin, Minority Leader Mann, Congressman Rodenberg, Gillett, Sherwood, and other veteran members. It is unusual for the House to accord such a testimonial to a sitting member, and the "Uncle Joe" celebration will be a unique event in the history of the lower chamber.

Aqueduct Bridge Bill In President's Hands

Measure Providing $1,000,000 for New Structure Ready for Wilson's Signature.

RAPID ACTION BY CONGRESS

Congressman Charles C. Carlin Wins Long Fight—Adamson Aids Speedy Enactment.

Only the signature of the President is now needed to make available $1,000,000 for building a magnificent new Aqueduct bridge in Georgetown. After several years of delay Congressman Charles C. Carlin of Virginia has been rewarded by seeing both houses pass the bill.

Congressman Carlin, who comes from Alexandria, and Chairman William C. Adamson, of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, are largely responsible for the speedy enactment of the bill at this season. Chairman Adamson persuaded the House that the bill should be given preferential consideration in its disposition of calendar business, and the measure was given the right of way by unanimous consent.

In Hands of President.

When the bill went to the Senate it was expedited by Senators Swanson and Martin. The Carlin bill came back to the House yesterday afternoon with minor amendments, and Chairman Adamson immediately moved that the House accept the Senate amendments and forego the routine of sending the bill to conference.

With the acceptance of the Senate amendments by the House the bill was ready for the President, who probably will sign it today or tomorrow. Congressman Carlin has been fighting for a new bridge at Georgetown since the present structure began to be dangerous.

Commission to See Plans.

The principal Senate amendment to the original House bill was that offered by Senator McLean providing that the Fine Arts Commission shall examine the plans for the new bridge.

The bill appropriates $25,000 to repair the existing structure so that it may last until the $1,000,000 bridge is constructed. The Secretary of War is given jurisdiction over the bridge and will have control of both its construction and its operation. It is provided that the new bridge shall be located "at or near" the site of the present Aqueduct bridge, which connects Thirty-fifth and M streets, Georgetown, with Rosslyn, Va.

"CLEAN-UP, PAINT-UP" CAMPAIGN BEST EVER

Chairman A. H. Mcghan Reports Marked Improvement Over Activities of Last Year.

Marked improvement over campaigns of previous years is manifested in the "Clean-up and Paint-up" activities here, according to A. H. Mcghan.

This statement is contained in a report which Mr. Mcghan, as chairman of the campaign committee, made to the Master House Painters and Decorators' Association meeting last night in the Corcoran building.

Mr. Mcghan declared the purpose of the campaign is to distribute the renovation of the city's home over as long a period as possible rather than to concentrate it into a few weeks. This latter policy, he believes would result in such a crowding of work that in a short time all work would be exhausted and many experienced men would be out of employment.

Mr. Mcghan announced contributors to the support of the campaign as follows: Woodward & Lothrop, McInnis Scalloping Company, S. Kann, Sons & Co., George F. Muth & Co., Saks & Co., Barber & Ross, Edward & Watkins, W. J. Callahan, Thomas V. Smith, S. P. Harbin, National Electric Supply Company, W. A. Finch, J. W. Lacey, August W. F. Nicholson, E. Russell, Craven & Co., C. A. Neubeck, James Lunkey, Pennington & Taylor, J. Frank Campbell, L. Barr, H. P. Amos, C. A. Herbert, J. F. Nicholson, Palais Royal, Moore & Wood, J. B. Jones, Charles MacNichol, F. P. May, George E. Corbett, Lyster Brothers, Hugh Reilly, W. H. Butler, C. F. Neabit, E. J. Murphy, and George R. Gill.

Mr. Shepherd was better known on the stage as McLean. Under that name he became celebrated in the role of Brutus, playing with William Faversham in "Julius Caesar."

The closet scene from "Hamlet" will be enacted by Mr. and Mrs. George Buckler, both of whom have played Shakespearean roles. They played with Thomas Keen in the days when Mr. Keen was at the height of his popularity.

"Shakespeare 300 Years Hence" will be the subject of an address by Senator Gore of Oklahoma, and "Educational Values in the Shakespearean Comedies" will be the topic of an address by Prof. William Allen Wilbur, dean of Columbian College and head of the English department.
